ISO 9001:2008 to ISO 9001:2015
Transition Made Simple, Easy & Effective

ISO 9001:2015

ISO 9001:2008

ISO 9001:2015
has arrived.

International Organization for Standardization has published one of the most awaited upgrade to the most popular quality management system with ISO 9001:2008 revised as ISO 9001:2015. New ISO 9001:2015 version of QMS makes a holistic change to way a quality management system is planned, implemented, maintained and improved. It brings structural changes with a 10 clause standard as per Annex SL to have a uniform look and feel of all ISO standards and standardization of standards.

New ISO 9001:2015 standard ensures strategic alignment between QMS, your organization and context of an organization. It moves from document oriented approach to performance oriented approach with less emphasis on documentation and less prescribed requirements. Introduction of concepts of risk & opportunities and more emphasis on process based management makes ISO 9001:2015 standard complete, comprehensive and evolved as per business dynamics and requirements.

What does this mean for certified organisations?

- The new standard was published on September 15, 2015. This means that the ISO 9001:2008 standard will become obsolete on September 14, 2018. As a result, All ISO 9001:2008 certifications issued in late 2015 and beyond will have to bear an expiry date September 14, 2018.

- All organizations certified to ISO 9001:2008 standard need to upgrade to ISO 9001:2015 by September 2018.

- ISO 9001:2008 certified organisations will need to identify gaps, train employees, establish new processes / change existing processes to address and implement the new requirements.

- ISO 9001:2008 certified organisations should start preparing for the changes and implement an action plan to transition to the new standard as soon as possible.

- Get acquainted with new requirements of ISO 9001:2015 standards like internal issues, external issues, interested parties, risk & opportunities, risk based thinking, knowledge management, process based approach etc.
